An administrative action complaint includes complaints that are:

- fixed quickly

- made anonymously.

An affected person is someone who is seems to be directly affected by an administrative action of council.

The CMP doesn't apply to:

- complaints about the conduct or performance of councillors
- complaints about corruption
- public interest disclosures
- complaints covered by separate review or appeal processes.

2. POLICY

2.1 POLICY STATEMENT:

Council will respond to administrative action complaints quickly, efficiently, and in a fair and objective way. The process for effectively managing all administrative action complaints (complaints) is outlined below:

3. STANDARDS AND PROCEDURES

3.1 SPECIFIC AND STANDARD

3.1.1 Submitting an Administrative Action Complaint

- The affected person completes an Administrative Action Complaint Form available on Council's website or by request. If requested, a Council officer is to assist an affected person in completing this form. If an affected person requires interpreter services, or has special communication needs to complete an Administration Action Complaint Form, the affected person must be referred to the CEO who will provide advice or arrange for assistance where appropriate.
- The completed Administrative Action Complaint Form can be submitted by email, by post, or in person to a Councillor or Council officer.
- Council will acknowledge submission of the Administrative Action Complaint Form (and any attached material) in writing within seven working days indicating the submission date. As part of this acknowledgement, the name and contact details of an appointed Complaints Officer (see Section 3.1.2 below) will also be provided to the affected person.

3.1.2 Appointment of a Complaints Officer

- The CEO will appoint a Complaints Officer to assist with the resolution of a complaint. The Complaints Officer may be a Council officer or a suitably qualified person external to Council. The person appointed as a Complaints Officer for a particular complaint will be appointed on the basis that the person has the appropriate knowledge, qualifications, skill and experience to successfully resolve a complaint.

Complaints Management Process – Administrative Action Complaints Policy

3.1.3 Preliminary Procedure

- In the first instance, with the assistance of the Complaints Officer, the relevant Council department should try to resolve a complaint to the satisfaction of the affected person before it is dealt with under this policy.
- If a complaint is not resolved by the relevant Council department, it will be dealt with using the following investigation process.
- All complaints (including anonymous complaints) will be investigated using the following process if the CEO considers that a reasonable attempt has been made in the first instance by the relevant Council department to resolve the complaint.

3.1.4 Investigation of an Administrative Action Complaint

- The Complaints Officer will conduct an investigation into the complaint, make findings, formulate recommendations and prepare a report on the outcome of the investigation for consideration by the CEO. The investigation of a complaint is to be undertaken by the Complaints Officer in an independent, impartial and objective manner. The Complaints Officer is to adhere to the following principles when conducting an investigation of a complaint:
 - Procedural fairness/natural justice is to be followed.
 - The establishment and maintenance of a complete document trail is essential as it may be needed to facilitate a subsequent review.
 - Where appropriate, the civil standard of proof applies for administrative investigations. This means that for a complaint to be upheld, it must have been determined that it is the more likely outcome in the circumstances.
 - Confidentiality about the investigation must be maintained to the extent that it can reasonably be achieved, subject to other legal requirements about the disclosure of information.
- Any Complaints Officer appointed to investigate a complaint will not have been involved with the administrative action in question.

3.1.5 Timeframes

- In general terms, the Council will endeavour to have the following timeframes met when dealing with a complaint:
 - for urgent matters - within seven business days;
 - for non-urgent complaints that are not considered to be complex, and the complaint is to be investigated using an internal mechanism, within 25 business days; and
 - for complex complaints or where the complaint is to be investigated using an external entity, within (45) business days.
- The timeframe for dealing with a complaint is measured from the submission date of a complaint to the date that the affected person is informed of the decision about the complaint.
- If the nominated timeframe for dealing with a complaint cannot be met for any reason, the CEO may, once only, extend the time for dealing with the complaint but must notify the affected person in writing of any such extension before the expiry of the initial timeframe.
- Any further extensions will only be given with the consent of the affected person. In determining the length of any extension, the CEO is to fix a date that is reasonable but in no case is the revised date to be more than three months after the date that the complaint was initially received by the Council.
- If a complaint is resolved to the affected person's satisfaction before the investigation is complete, written notice confirming resolution of the complaint is to be given to the affected person.

Complaints Policy

3.1.6 Assessment process

The assessment of a complaint has three stages as outlined below:

Stage One – Initial Assessment

- The Complaints Officer will undertake an initial assessment of the complaint received (and any attached material) to fully understand the nature of the complaint and the outcome sought by the affected person. The officer may seek additional information from the affected person if required.
- Once the nature of the complaint and the outcome sought by the affected person is fully understood, the CEO is to determine if the investigation is to proceed to the next stage.
- The CEO is to give consideration to the following criteria when assessing whether an investigation is to proceed to the next stage:
 - the complaint is trivial; or
 - the complaint concerns a frivolous matter or is considered to be a vexatious complaint; or
 - both of the following apply:
 - (a) the affected person has a right of appeal, reference or review, or another remedy, that the person has not exhausted; and
 - (b) it would be reasonable in the circumstances to require the affected person to exhaust that right or remedy before the Complaints Officer continues to investigate, the complaint;
 - in the circumstances, investigating the complaint is otherwise unnecessary or an unjustifiable use of resources.
- Should the CEO determine that an investigation should not proceed to the next stage; the affected person is to be notified in writing. This notification is to include the reason/s for this determination.

Stage Two – Comprehensive Assessment

- The Complaints Officer will undertake a comprehensive assessment of the complaint to determine if the complaint (or part thereof) is to be upheld.
- A complaint (or part thereof) is said to be upheld if the Complaints Officer determines that an administration error has occurred and remedial action is required by the Council.
- If the Complaints Officer determines that a complaint (or part thereof) is not upheld, no administration error has occurred and remedial action is not required by the Council.
- In undertaking this comprehensive assessment, the Complaints Officer is to collect and analyse all information relevant to the complaint including legislation and Council policies and procedures. This process may also involve discussions and interviews with the affected person, Council officers and third parties where appropriate.
- At the conclusion of this stage, the Complaints Officer is required to prepare a report for the CEO. The report is typically to address the following matters to the extent that each matter is relevant to the complaint in question:
 - The complaint issue/s identified through a concise summary of the material facts and circumstances of the matter.
 - Any relevant legislation.
 - Any relevant Council policy or other similar document.
 - Persons interviewed and/or consulted and relevant information obtained during any interviews and consultations.
 - Results of any relevant research undertaken.

 - The direct supervisor of the officer against whom the complaint is made if the above does not apply.
- The CEO has the authority to provide any lawful remedy irrespective of whether the remedy has been recommended by the Complaints Officer.

Stage Three – Resolving a complaint

- If it has been determined that a complaint (or part thereof) is not upheld, the affected person is to be notified in writing. This notification is to include the reason/s for this determination and an explanation of the administrative action that was taken.
- If it has been determined that a complaint (or part thereof) is upheld, the affected person is to be notified in writing. This notification is to include the reason/s for this determination and an explanation of the remedial action that will be taken by the Council.
- Remedial action may include, but is not limited to:
 - an explanation for the action in question;
 - an admission of fault;
 - an apology;
 - counselling
 - disciplinary action
 - provision of training
 - revocation or amendment of the decision;
 - rectification, including repairing or replacing the matter in dispute;
 - revision of relevant policy, procedure or practice;
 - provision of technical assistance;
